I. Radionics, short presentation

Radionics is one of the most mysterious fields of science, for a long time considered magic or the appanage of a few initiates.

Although the term "radionics" was introduced relatively recently (in the early 20th century by the American physician Abrams), mentions of this ancient science date back to immemorial times. Radionic drawings were found on the walls of caves, drawings that ensured the protection of the tribe or the success of the hunt; we have testimonies that such devices were used in China, Egypt and Peru, to develop certain latent capabilities of the human being. There are also testimonies in ancient writings about their use for therapeutic purposes. From this perspective, even the pyramids in Egypt or in China are nothing but huge radionic devices capable of influencing in a beneficial way the entire planet, vestiges of an era whose discoveries we did not even dare to envisage.

Our group aims to bring to the foreground this science forgotten today, but highly valued in former times.

Radionics is a true science of resonance. If we were to give a definition as concise as possible, I would say that radionics is the art of quickly making two systems resonate (making them oscillate on the same vibration frequency). From this point of view, everything in manifestation is radionics (resonance). Most people unconsciously use radionics day by day, moment by moment, for the most trivial things, and the very fact that they use it routinely makes them to no longer notice it and no longer see the miracle of what is happening moment by moment. Using such a device is a conscious act that involves a great deal of responsibility and control over one's destiny. A radionic action produces instant results, but a limited power of perception cannot necessarily correlate and notice these effects.

A radionic action does not imply a transfer of energy in the sense accepted by modern science, but it produces an informational structuring in the system on which we act so that it is tuned to the frequency of the phenomenon we want to manifest. We mention that the tuning of two systems is a punctual phenomenon; if the frequencies are not perfectly equal, resonance does not occur; conclusively, however close we are to the resonant frequency, the phenomena remain measurable, therefore finite; at resonance, the energy becomes infinite. In any other places than at resonance, the phenomena remain within normal limits, but at resonance, there are results that go beyond usual explanations.

We wish to emphasize that radionic actions are all the more obvious and faster the more the system on which we act (the target) seeks also to transform itself and physically act in the same direction as the one sustained radionically.

When using such a device for curative purposes, we advise you not to discontinue any treatment (even if the effects obtained by radionic actions are substantial); a radionic action being compatible with any kind of treatment.

In very broad terms, the notion of radionics refers to the ability of remotely transmitting an influence to a subject using only a biological imprint of that subject. Whereas in the beginning, the term “radionics” referred only to transmitting an influence to a target, later the concept was developed and understood in a complex way and, practically, radionics became an unconventional study of resonance and many quantum notions considered as not having practical found applications and meanings in radionics. Radionics can be regarded as the fundamental logic of manifestation through resonance and various radionic experiments have been carried out in all sorts of fields:

- analysis of the components of some materials;
- analysis regarding the health status of a person;
- photos in the absence of the subject;
- temporal regressions starting from physical imprints from the past;
- transcommunication experiments (communication with parallel planes).

As a radionic action is extremely powerful (and the consequences can be likewise), before detailing information about radionics, we must present some considerations you must necessarily take into account when operating with a radionic device.

The language we will use may not necessarily be a scientific one, but we consider it to be the most appropriate for most people to understand and we believe that this is the most important thing. In fact, many people who operate with radionics, although initially declared themselves to be atheists or skeptics because of their personal experiences, become familiar with what is called the supernatural and undoubtedly come to feel the existence of a consciousness that manifests and organizes the entire Universe in a perfect way, therefore a language that is directed towards the personal and spiritual development of the human being is most appropriate when speaking of radionics.

II. ATLANTIS–Components

ATLANTIS is a compact radionic device incorporated in a parallelepipedic box with the adjust buttons located on the front panel. On the right side on top of the box, you will find the stickpad (the component used for tuning), and on the back, there is the power jack.

In front, there are two connection sockets located; these sockets are used for conducting trans-communication experiments or for various detections. We have sought to simplify the use of the device as much as possible for it to be accessible to a wide range of users. The first adjust buttons on the left, labeled "Sample tuning," realize the tuning between the witness and the imprint.

The other button, labeled "Modulation" on the device, sets the degree of modulation of the wanted signal over a carrier that is emitted by the device (the tuning is done the same way for all five buttons on the front panel, regardless of the function they carry). On the left side, you will find the control and display panel for starting the device and for setting the timer. The three horizontal light indicators at the bottom are buttons that control various functions. They have behind them optical sensors that feel the location of the finger in front of them so that you don't have to press but just place your finger on the indicator. Their mode of operation is described in Chapter V.1.

The five tuning buttons are adjusted in order, from left to right, beginning with button 1 on the left and continuing with the other three adjustments numbered in order 2, 3, 4, followed by the 5th button which adjusts the degree of modulation.

The device is provided with two slots, one on the upper left and one on the right rear, which represent the openings of the two boxes in which the plastic envelopes are inserted with the witness and the imprint, respectively.

The box at the top of the ATLANTIS device, placed vertically, is the witness box, and the box behind the device, placed horizontally, is the imprint box. The methods of use and how the control and the imprint are placed and used are described in Chapter V.

III. First and foremost

III.1. Awareness

First of all, any radionic action is performed begins with an awareness. To raise awareness means to appeal to our deepest level, to the subconscious that orders and harmonizes everything, to the divine spark that exists in every human being. Awareness makes action holistic, without awareness, it is only a decision and an action of our ego. Awareness causes the implications of the action to be in agreement with the way the Life Force (the Supreme Intelligence present in every being) wants to structure things, it makes all the implications of our action have a beneficial turn, both for us and for the others. In scientific terms, awareness is about understanding whether the action we want to take is ecological (harmonious for ourselves and for the environment—for others). The studies and experiments that we have undertaken have shown that beyond the physical level (the physical body), there is something deeper, imperceptible to ordinary consciousness, which governs and influences everything that happens in the physical plane. In psychological terms, this level is called long-term memory, but we will use the term "Self"—in order to emphasize the profound aspect of this level as well as to be consistent with ancient traditional texts about spirituality and to highlight the fundamental link that exists between radionics and our spiritual evolution. This level is omnipresent, omnipotent, omniscient (studies by Théodule Ribot, Raymond Abrezol etc.). In fact, it has the same attributes as Divinity, and it is that divine spark manifested in each of us, as there is nothing in manifestation without God. (Even though it seems more religion than science, you should know that the world's greatest scientists—Einstein, Tesla, Heisenberg, Pascal—were believers and even claimed that this faith in God helped them to understand and discover so many new things in the fields they researched. As Pascal said, "Even when we are mercantile, we must believe in God, because if we believe and He does not exist, we have lost nothing, whereas if He exists and we do not believe, we have lost everything.")

Beyond these arguments, our experiences and research have fully proven to us that there is a memory and a consciousness that permeate everything that exists in the Universe so that there is not even one single atom that can evolve outside this consciousness. Modern science has demonstrated the existence of a memory they called “long-term memory;” and experiments have shown that it is not located in the physical body (no matter which part of the nervous system is lobotomized, this memory is not affected), it has an answer to all questions and communicates permanently with the coarse structures, that is with the physical body. Even if we do not understand all the implications of the action we take and do not realize whether it is beneficial to us or not, our Self knows all these things and even tells us about them. All we need to do in an awareness process is to ask ourselves if what we want to do is harmonious. Through exercise, we get to feel this response in the form of a state of well-being, a specific emotion or even a thrill we feel in our spine or in the head area and fills us with peace and joy.

Returning now to the Self-manifested in each of us, it is not only omnipresent, omnipotent, omniscient, but it answers every request and every question our mind asks. The blockages and limitations in obtaining results appear because of the continuous mental flow that brings a lot of contradictory information with it. Throughout our research, we have found that each time someone has difficulties in achieving success in one direction, it is because of the mixed signals sent to the subconscious. For example, someone wants money (material prosperity), but at the same time constantly sends the subconscious the idea that money is something dirty. In such situations, the subconscious reacts at best neutrally, meaning it decides not to change anything.

There is a very clear law of success valid in every direction we aim to achieve something: each result has a price. The steps required to achieve a result are the following:

- establishing the result we want to produce;
- assessing the price to be paid;
- making the decision to pay the price.

Any purpose involves a price, and when you realize what the price is, it only remains to pay it. Any routine for success follows this path. For example, if you want to be perfectly healthy, say that the price would be to give up meat, tobacco, alcohol, coffee and run for an hour every day. Without paying this price, health is not possible, and those who know this and are not willing to mobilize themselves in the indicated way accept their fate. Acting radionically does not mean dribbling this circuit. It is no use consistently focusing an affirmation with the help of a radionic device if we behave inconsistently and our actions contradict it.

Radionics means understanding and knowledge, it means seeing how the Universe conspires for us to achieve our goals, it means miracle and speed in everything we want to achieve, provided we are consistent; that is if we pay the price.

III.2. Methods to achieve awareness

When we achieve awareness, we relate to the Self (to our deepest level) and put ourselves in the position of a relay, letting IT act through us. This act integrates all our actions into Divine harmony. Awareness can be easily achieved by those who practice a spiritual path by integrating action at the level of their highest center of strength located in the crown area (Sahasrara), or it can be attained by simply saying a prayer such as “Our Father”—at the beginning of the process—or just saying a statement like “God, Heavenly Father, now and here, please help me do this!”

We would like to point out that the awareness-raising initiative is an act recommended before any radionic action. This way, the user of the device is protected from any harmful implications, and when we say harmful, we refer to the effects that the action can have on you. The ATLANTIS device contains certain structures that do not allow the manifestation of processes other than those which are accordant with the Divine harmony, so it does not allow you to harm yourself; however, the awareness stage moves the perspective from the limited sphere of the ego towards the infinity and omnipotence of your supreme Self.

(Each radionic device contains a type of filter that does not allow a person to do any harm on himself or herself. I have written all of this here in order to understand how powerful a radionic action can be. Be brave and act and along the way you will learn everything you need to know.)

When a radionic action is performed upon a system (by system, we mean a human being, a place, a plant, an animal etc.), it unconsciously exerts a reaction force similar to the action but focused on the place from which the action originates. The reaction is organic; always occurs and is known as return shock. The only way to escape the return shock is to achieve awareness before you start working with ATLANTIS. By practicing, you will come to perceive a certain kind of inner thrill that appears after you have achieved awareness; this is the answer to awareness. If it does not appear or is confused, our advice is to give up or reformulate that action and harmonize it with the Divine Energy.

Then you will realize that the one who performs the action is no longer you but the Self, and the actions that it performs are always harmonious and beneficial.

It is difficult to express in words how awareness is perceived. The Self has a transcendent, immaterial nature and therefore the perception related to it is subjective, specific to each person. Work constantly, start with small steps and you will have a clear understanding of your own perceptions.

At first, you should work with the device for your own person, start with small actions, and as you become successful, learn to achieve awareness and use the device correctly. You can switch to larger actions or help other people.

IV. Fundamental radionic principles

IV.1. Constituent elements

No matter how simple or complex a radionic device is, a radionic action implies the existence of four elements:

1. The emission part or the influence you wish to manifest; the source—in radionics, it is called WITNESS.
2. The receiving part or the element that evokes the system on which you act; the target—in radionics, it is called IMPRINT.
3. THE RADIONIC DEVICE that connects the first two elements.
4. THE OPERATOR—the person who performs the tuning of the radionic device.

1. The witness

Radionics is based on the holographic principle of manifestation. Although, as I have said, evidence of the use of radionics, even at a very high level, has been around since ancient times and there are very old texts describing such devices, and in the modern era, the scientific approach to radionics is relatively recent. More profound explanations of how radionics works are related to quantum physics, neuroscience, holistic approach, systems theory, notions that are still new even in this era.

Radionics does not usually directly use the elements from which we want to send the influence or to which we want to send this influence, it uses an imprint of that item. In quantum physics, there is a phenomenon called entanglement. According to this phenomenon, if we take two quantum particles that were together, separate them and place them at cosmic distances from each another (one at one end of the Universe and the other at the other end) and if we take action on one of these particles, then the same kind of action manifests instantly on the other particle as if the propagation speed were infinite or there was no distance between the two particles.

In radionics, samples from subjects are taken; these samples being called imprints. In order to be able to differentiate them, the sample used for the emission (the transmitting influence) is called witness, and the one for the reception (which represents the system on which we want to send the influence) is called imprint.

The witness can be:

- a written affirmation (you will find in another chapter the way affirmations are formulated and how they act);
- a piece of colored paper or fabric that evokes the sphere of influence of a colored subtle current;

- a fragment of metal that evokes the sphere of action of that metal;
- a fragment of a plant in order to transmit an influence characteristic to that plant;
- a fragment of a mineral;
- a geometric figure;
- a yantra, mandala—geometric drawings that allow resonance with certain subtle energies;
- a mantra—a written formula that allows the connection with certain spheres of influence;
- a photograph of a person whose influence we want to amplify through the device. It is not about manipulation or control, but if, for example, we want to amplify financial magnetism, we can add the photo of someone who has succeeded in this field and, by tuning, only the influence that interests us is selected;
- a chemical whose influence we want to transmit;
- a homeopathic remedy etc.

2. The imprint

The imprint represents the target towards which we focus the action and, in accordance with the principle of quantum connection (entanglement) that we talked about earlier, this action is felt by the subject on which we actually want to act. The best imprints are the biological ones, but we can also use other imprints, such as:

- a hair;
- a drop of saliva on a piece of napkin or blotting paper;
- a drop of blood on a piece of napkin or blotting paper;
- a fragment of a fingernail;
- the signature on a piece of paper;
- the name written on a piece of paper if we have no other imprint;
- a sketch of a house and some cracks of scraped plaster from that house (if we want to act on a house);
- the sketch of a plot and some cracks of soil from that plot in order to act on a place;
- the sketch of the plot and some cracks from the respective crop when we want to help an agricultural crop;
- a fragment from the plant on which we want to act etc.

The witness and the imprint are inserted into plasticized black envelopes so that they can be easily placed in the appropriate boxes. When using biological samples (saliva, blood, hair, fingernails) or chemicals that can contaminate the envelopes and compromise subsequent actions, it is advisable to pack them in paper or even place them in small plastic bags.

3. The radionic device

In this case, the ATLANTIS device contains amplifying elements and a tuning device that connects the operator's mind with the witness and the imprint as if creating an external synapse. However, unlike the situation when we strive to focus our mind on the affirmation we want to manifest and in which we manage to maintain the focus for only small fractions of a second, here, by tuning, the subconscious is the one who takes control and makes this quasi-permanent focus. In other words, the efficiency is much higher. Moreover, the amplifier elements of the device cause the effect to be amplified thousands of times.

The tuning is a radesthetic one and involves communication with our subconscious mind. It is similar to using the radesthesia pendulum (in fact, you can use the pendulum or any kind of radesthetic dowsing rod above the tuning element incorporated in ATLANTIS if you are more familiar with a different kind of tuning), only it is much simpler and in a very short time, any normal person learns to use it and feel the tuning. As with any other element of radiesthetic tuning, here is also a convention that you make with your subconscious and the unconscious response that appears is objectified with the help of the tuning element; however, unlike other forms of tuning, here, the tuning is the same for any person

(the same kind of convention) and is very easy to perceive by anyone, sometimes even from the first uses.

The tuning element used in the ATLANTIS device is called stickpad, and since it was discovered, it has become the main mode of tuning in radionics due to its simplicity and the very easy way it can be connected to the rest of the radionic circuit. Basically, the stickpad is a glossy plastic plate on which your finger can easily slide. The convention made when we start to work with this type of tuning is the following: in the case of a positive response (agreement), the finger grips on the plastic plate, whereas any other type of response causes the finger to slip undisturbed.

How does the stickpad actually work? First of all, this convention I stated above is made mentally. Then the finger is brought into a state of slipping (gliding) on the plastic board at the limit of resistance. The finger moves slightly, but the slightest breeze causes it to stop. By slightly changing the humidity of the index finger on the right hand (the dedicated finger with which the tuning is made for right-handed people), the finger is brought to the state which, in radionics, is called system at the limit of balance, that is the finger moves extremely easily on the plate, but the smallest impulse can cause it to grip, moving very hard. If your finger is too dry, you can blow lightly over it and so you wet it very finely and you will feel that slight sliding at the limit, or if your finger is too wet and slides with difficulty, you can wipe it on a piece of cloth to get the same feeling. When an agreement is obtained, the finger grips (keeping the same pressure on the plate).

The stickpad is somewhat inductively or capacitively connected to the rest of the mounting. We say "somewhat" because logic, in radionics, is different from what is commonly used in electricity, with the focus here being on the scalar aspect of electromagnetic radiation. For simplicity, each time we refer to the stickpad from now on, we will simply call it a "pad."

Attunement

The pad helps us to objectify the response our subconscious provides us regarding the position of the button to achieve attunement. To achieve attunement, bring all the buttons to "0" and rotating them counterclockwise. Then place the right index (left for left-handed people) on the pad moving the finger slightly (no matter how you move the finger, you will move it as if you wanted to feel the texture of the material), while with the left hand, slightly rotate clockwise (and only in this direction) the first button on the left (button no. 1). As you turn the button, your mind is focused on the affirmation you have placed on the witness. You do not have to remember and focus all the affirmations you have written on the paper placed on the witness, but only the general idea, for example, the idea that in 6 months, you have a 50% higher salary or the idea that your health becomes better with each passing day. Do not worry if the mind is rambling (this is natural to happen), the important thing is to have a moment of awareness of the purpose you want to materialize so that the subconscious knows for what it is looking to find attunement. When you rotate the button, you do it slow enough so that you can feel that the finger moving on the pad grips but fast enough so that the entire tuning process (all 5 buttons) does not last longer than 1–1.5 minutes. If it lasts longer, the communication with our subconscious is already disturbed by the conscious mind and it is better to resume the tuning from scratch. As soon as you feel your finger grip, stop turning button 1; the position in which it stopped is the point of attunement. Therefore, leave button 1 in this position and, focusing on the same idea you want to materialize, make the tuning for button 2, then for 3, 4, and finally for button 5. As I said, the process takes place relatively quickly and it is not the conscious that perceives the attunement but the subconscious. For this purpose, you must be as detached and relaxed as possible when making the tuning.

After the tuning is made, leave the device in this position without moving it until the next tuning. If you accidentally move the device, you need to resume the tuning.

The maximum effect of the action is obtained in the first half-hour, but the most consistent effects are in the first 2 hours. There is also a daily cycle that involves the need for tuning every day; the time you make the tuning is not important, but it must be performed daily as it is the ingredient that can not lack in the rapid realization of an intention.

Therefore, all you have to do regarding radionic action is to make this tuning quickly and then go about your business. Of course, this does not exclude what we have specified above; the fact of being aligned in the rest of your actions with the affirmation you want to manifest.

As I said, the tuning is made once a day, at least, but if there are urgent actions, you can make the tuning every 2 hours or even every half-hour if it is something critical. The radionic action is very powerful and the system on which you operate is rapidly changing, and at the next tuning, you will see that the position of the buttons is different.

It is advisable to perform only one action at a time and start another only after you have finished the current action. Some processes require a short time to take shape in the physical plane (from a few minutes to a few days), others require weeks or even months. It is very important to be patient and wait for the system on which you operate to create the harmony necessary for manifesting the phenomenon.

4. The operator

The last element, the operator, is the one that acts through the device. In fact, the one that operates through the device is the mind of the operator itself. I have mentioned above that there is a permanent communication between the long-term memory of the being (Subconscious–Self) and the mind. In other words, if the mind gives a precise order to the Subconscious, the latter immediately performs the action. For example, we propose to wake up early in the morning and when we go to bed we say: “I wake up at 5.00.” In the morning, without any effort, we wake up at the time we set out. Then why don’t all directions work the same way? Because in reality, we are sending a mixed message to the subconscious: on the one hand, consciously, we would like to implement a certain result and at the same time, the subconscious is running a lot of engrams (automatic subconscious thoughts) that sabotage our conscious intention. And do you know what’s really going on? Consciously, we can focus on a single concept for only very small fractions of a second, whereas subconscious engrams are quasi-permanent, therefore in the battle between the conscious and the subconscious, the latter always wins.

For example, many people would like to be prosperous and maybe they even allocate time for it, think positively, build strategies, prepare themselves etc. At the same time, in their subconscious run the engrams formed through education, through the environment in which they lived etc., engrams that keep saying:

- money is the root of all evil;
- money corrupts;
- I cannot manage money;
- money can't buy happiness;
- maybe I do not deserve to have a lot of money;
- the poor are blessed;
- with money, it is easy come, easy go;
- X got rich, he must have committed some fraud (This message gives the brain the idea that in order to have money, we must resort to immoral or illegal actions.);
- lucky in love, unlucky in money etc.

All these messages (both conscious and subconscious) reach our deep memory and while negative subconscious ideas are quasi-permanent (running continuously in the subconscious—they are habits) and we often quote them, the positive conscious messages, due to the unstable nature of the mind, can hardly be maintained for a few fractions of a second. What is the result? An amalgam in which usually, the engrams (habits) are the ones that win. And the subconscious is the one who keeps saying triumphantly: "I knew it would be so!" or "I told you so!"

IV.2. Conclusions regarding radionics

Radionics creates a bridge through which the operator's mind continuously feeds a thought without the user being permanently and consciously focused on it. Establishing the attunement, which lasts several tens of seconds, creates an external synapse that holds in the subconscious the idea that we want to manifest. Then all kinds of synchronicities and conjunctions are created which broaden our understanding, help to create new habits, engrave new mental schemes, the engrams that blocked us gradually dissolve themselves, and at a certain moment, an inner click occurs and the affirmation formulated reaches finality, that is to say, it is realized.

The larger the internal blockages, the longer the materialization will take. Radionics is not Aladdin's lamp, it assumes we understand that everything happening to us is due to ourselves, that we are what we are because of our habits and that we are willing to transform ourselves in order to reach our goals.

The role of radionics is to amplify and make things happen much faster than they would normally and inevitably happen (it creates an attraction that gets us closer to our goal).

The one that acts and is directly responsible for the results is the mind of the operator. That is why it is very important to be very careful about the way you choose your goals so they are environmentally friendly (have positive implications for yourself as well as for those involved). When you act to help someone else, it is good to evaluate whether it is worth taking that action or not. If you feel the slightest doubt about the action you want to perform, take a break, evaluate the action and maybe rephrase it until you are inwardly aligned with it.

A big weight in the success of the action lies in the way you make affirmations—in this aspect, we have dedicated a special chapter.

V. Modes of utilisation

First of all, you need to decide on where to put your ATLANTIS device. It is best not to place it in the immediate vicinity of sources of electromagnetic radiation (TV, telephone, computer etc.), which means at least 0.5 m distance from such a source. Inside, it has structures that immunize it to the effect of electromagnetic disturbances, still, it is better not to place it near radiation sources. Also, it is good that the place is withdrawn, so that the device is not in the way of the curious people: any movement of the device involves resuming the tuning.

The casing of the device is itself an amplifier, so when working with ATLANTIS, do not place other objects on top of the casing.

Now place the device in your place of choice and connect it using the charger to the 220 V (110 V) mains.

Then check your inner state; if it is not calm and harmonious, it is good to put the action off, otherwise, the tuning and the results will be vitiated.

V.1. How to turn on the device and set the timer

After you have connected the appliance to the mains (it works both at 220 V and 110 V), the device turns on the LEDs (lights) on the timer and the one on the sound 3 times, and at the same time the LEDs are lit, you can hear a long beep. This means that the control module is functional and you can start work.

The LEDs on the bottom line (Power, Temp, Sound) have optical sensors behind them and also act as control buttons. There is no need to press them, just touch them lightly and the orders will be taken over.

The green LEDs indicate the activation of certain functions. The yellow, orange and red LEDs indicate reaching certain time intervals.

Each optical signal (lighting of a LED) is accompanied by beep signals.

To turn on the device, touch and hold the Power button (hold your finger for 3 seconds). You hear a beep and the Power and Sound LEDs light up. At this point, you can use the ATLANTIS device; the radionic action part is powered and therefore it is functional and you can perform any kind of action. The timer only has the role of monitoring and warning and does not affect the radionic action part.

To start the timer, briefly touch the Temp button (0.5 seconds). The corresponding LED flashes. For 2 minutes, the LED blinks, and the time monitoring is not yet on so that you have time to perform the tuning. After 2 minutes, the LED lights up completely and the time count has begun. If you have not been able to reach the attunement in 2 minutes, something in what you are doing is wrong. The tuning, normally (being calm and quiet), only takes a few tens of seconds, otherwise, the conscious mind alters the communication with the subconscious. Resume the tuning by briefly touching the Temp button, thus restarting the timing process, the Temp LED alternately lights up and you have 2 minutes to perform the tuning again.

After 30 minutes, the yellow LED lights up, this interval being useful for extremely urgent and important actions or to monitor the energy charging of a drink or food.

After 2 hours, the orange LED lights up; the 2-hour interval is useful when you want to speed up an action.

After 24 hours, the red LED lights up; this is the interval from one day to the next in which you have to perform the tuning.

After 25 hours, the LEDs on the timer indicating the duration are blinking continuously to warn you that you may have spent a day without reconnecting.

After 48 hours, the LEDs on the timer indicating the durations light up continuously 3 times short, 3 times long, and 3 times short to warn you that you have lost the continuity of the action. Resume the action and do not allow more than one day (one-night sleep interval) to pass without performing the tuning.

To deactivate the timer, touch the Power button briefly and the device will return to the initial state of startup.

The last button, Sound, activates or deactivates the beeps. Short taps deactivate or activate the sound.

Button operation:

Power—long tap = turn on/off the device

short tap = stop timer

Temp—short tap = start/reset timer

Sound—short tap = activate/deactivate sound

V.2. Modes of utilisation

V.2.1 Transmitting an influence to a subject

It is the most used mode of utilisation. By subject, we understand a person or a group of persons, a place, a surface of land, a house, an agricultural crop, a plant, an animal etc. consists of the direct transmission of an influence to a subject.

Steps:

1. The witness, who can be in any form specified in IV.1, or a combination of several witnesses are chosen. Most of the time, because it optimally expresses the action we want to take, it is best to use a written affirmation (see the chapter on formulating affirmations) or a written affirmation correlated with other types of witnesses (with plant fragments, drawings etc.).
2. The imprint is chosen as specified in Chapter IV.1.
3. The witness and the imprint are inserted in the black envelopes the ATLANTIS device is provided with. The 2 envelopes are placed in the special drawers for the witness and the imprint.
4. All the buttons are brought to "0," rotating them gently counterclockwise all the way.

5. Awareness is realized and if all is well, proceed to the next step. If, however, you have the slightest doubt that something is wrong or you have not received the inside feedback that the action is okay, then stop the process, take a break and come back in a few hours, re-evaluate the action and if the same problem occurs again, reformulate and rethink the action (if you have followed the indications about the formulation of affirmations described in Chapter VII, most likely the answer is positive).
6. Perform the tuning. We again emphasize that the process of tuning must be done quickly. You don't have to feel stressed and pressed, you just have to act fast enough not to let the conscious mind destroy the process.
7. Leave the device immobile, in the position in which you performed the tuning, until the next tuning.

It is one of the most natural modes of action and the larger the problem (the intention is harder to materialize), the greater the button indications at first tuning will be. Gradually, if you work correctly, you will notice that as you re-execute the tuning, day after day, the directions of the buttons tend to come to "0." However, do not terminate the tuning until after the objective has been reached and it is even better that the tuning is continued 2 to 3 weeks after reaching the proposed objective.

V.2.2 Charging a liquid or solid object

You can charge the water you want to drink, the food, or you can charge a remedy, a tincture, a tea etc., or you can also charge a quartz, a semiprecious stone amulet, a medallion, a ring etc.

To charge water or food, 30 minutes is a long enough time.

In order to energize and amplify the effect of a remedy, 2 hours are necessary.

To program and charge a quartz or object that you will carry on you, it is best to leave it for 24 hours.

Steps:

1. You choose the witness, which can be any of the ones specified in IV.1. If you choose an affirmation, it is very important that the affirmation is not long but as short and symbolic as possible. Often, a simple word is enough, for example: Health or Love or Calm. Obviously, being such a simple affirmation, you do not need to go through the whole formulation and adjustment process described in Chapter VII.
2. Place the witness in the black envelope and insert it in the drawer for the witness on top of the device.

3. Insert into the drawer behind the device, dedicated to the imprint, the special antenna for charging liquids and food, and in the middle of it, insert the object that you want to charge (energize).
4. Bring all the buttons to "0," rotating them gently counterclockwise all the way.
5. Achieve awareness and if all is well, proceed to the next step.
6. Make the tuning.
7. After the time specified above, the energized object or food, remedy etc. may be used.

V.2.3 Restoring balance using a code given by the device

Each problem has a specific numeric code (rate) associated with it. With the help of the device, you can detect this code and then you can issue to the imprint the correction code (resulting from this code) that restores the balance and makes the problem disappear. We would like to point out that the detection must be done for each specific situation; the numerical codes cannot be taken from different lists simply because each situation is different and has different causes. Even if one problem is apparently similar to another, each situation has its own specific features and does not work by taking a code from a thematic list. Holistic, harmonious, with no negative side effects is to first find the specific code for each situation and from this code to deduce the code for balancing and restoring harmony.

Steps:

1. Choose the imprint of the problematic subject.
2. Place the imprint in the drawer corresponding to the witness (the vertical drawer at the top of the device).
3. Bring all the buttons to "0," rotating them gently counterclockwise all the way.
4. Achieve awareness and if all is well, proceed to the next step.
5. Perform the tuning by thinking of detecting the correction code for the problem you want to remove.
6. Then read the indications on the scales of the adjust buttons, starting from left to right and taking into account the decimals displayed between figures (with approximation). For example, let's say we got the following numeric combination: 7.3/4.8/6.5/2.1/5.7/ corresponding to the 5 adjust buttons.
7. Calculate the combination of the correction code by subtraction in complement to 10 (subtract from 10 each number corresponding to a button); for the above example, we will have the correction code: 2.7/5.2/3.5/7.9/4.3/.
8. Move the imprint in the drawer designed for it; the horizontal drawer at the back of the device.

9. Bring the adjust buttons in the position corresponding to the correction code and perform the tuning by slightly moving the buttons around the position corresponding to the code until the tuning is obtained on the pad. We would like to point out that a correction code can never be used without this fine adjustment of each button around the corresponding position.
10. Leave the device in this position for at least 2 hours.

Working with preset codes is very cumbersome and improper and our recommendation is to use them in acute cases where you have no other solutions or ideas. After each action, obviously, the state of the system on which we have acted changes and in order to act again, we have to do a new detection to find the problem code; according to it, we calculate the correction code and resume the process.

In this mode of action, the witness box remains empty when switching to emission, the idea of action being that of the correction code.

Even if the mode of action is cumbersome, the effects can be extremely powerful.

V.2.4. Detection using various scales

Along with the ATLANTIS device, you will also receive some general scales (which can be used in different situations) that you can use to investigate different directions of action:

- to find out whether or not a food is compatible with you;
- to find out the probability of an event occurring (as in radesthesia);
- to determine certain periods;
- to investigate whether or not certain alternative remedies are appropriate for a particular situation;
- to determine which spiritual practices are best suited to a particular situation;
- etc.

Even finding a correction code, as described in the previous subchapter, is a form of detection in which scales are the very indications around the buttons.

Steps:

1. Choose the imprint of the subject you want to investigate.
2. Place the imprint in the drawer corresponding to the witness (the vertical drawer at the top of the device).

3. Bring all the buttons to "0," rotating them gently counterclockwise all the way.
4. Achieve awareness and if all is well, proceed to the next step.
5. Insert the jack of the pointer into the corresponding socket on the front panel of the device.
6. Perform the tuning by mentalizing the attunement of the device with the subject.
7. Leaving the tuning performed, ask the question for which you want to find the answer and gently move the pointer along the scale, the right index continuously looking for the answer on the stickpad, and where the finger grips (positive answer), you read the indication of the pointer's position.

This mode of action requires more experience in working with radionics and more patience to achieve consistent results. It is very important that the whole process is carried out relatively quickly so as not to let the conscious mind alter the results.

As you can see, in this case, the imprint remains permanently in the drawer for the witness.

V.2.5. Transcommunication

Although this term is relatively recent, pursuits in this direction have been around for a long time. Moreover, great personalities of mankind known for their scientific achievements (Tesla, Edison, Marconi) had interests in this direction.

A definition of transcommunication would be communication with the subtle worlds, with the planes where all people go after death. However, over time, various pioneers of radionics have managed to achieve amazing results that far exceed this definition, going beyond the notions of time and space as we understand them today.

This application (like the next one) requires a lot of exercise, but anyone can succeed, and the understandings that arise during the process raise the level of consciousness and change the perspective on our existence.

Steps:

1. Choose the imprint of the subject you want to get in touch with. Unlike other applications, here, the subject must necessarily be a person who left this plane (no matter when) and whom we want to connect with.
2. Place the imprint in the vertical drawer for the witness.

3. Connect the transcommunication output (on the front panel) to the input for recording of a cassette recorder or a tape recorder (recording must mandatorily be done on analogue media) with a cable corresponding to the contact jacks.
4. Bring all the buttons to "0," rotating them gently counterclockwise all the way.
5. Achieve awareness and if all is well, proceed to the next step.
6. Perform the tuning by mentalizing the attunement of the device with the subject.
7. Start recording; throughout the recording, the operator must be present near the device.
8. After completing the recording, copy the recorded cassette (tape) on another new cassette (tape) (which no recordings have ever been made on); likewise, during the copying operation, the operator must be present next to the device that makes the copying.
9. Repeat 7–8 times the operation at point 8; in the recorded signal, there should appear sounds, voices—intelligible.

To bone up on this, you can search for reports on records made by Konstantin Raudive or Friedrich Jürgenson.

V.2.6. Photos in the absence of the subject

As with transcommunication, it takes a lot of exercise, but the rewards justify the effort. You can photograph any kind of phenomena, places, objects; past or present. There can be photographed organs (similar to x-rays) starting from the imprint.

You need basic knowledge of photographic development because you have to process the photo paper yourself and it is easier if it is black and white.

You should choose a photo paper with the highest sensitivity.

Steps:

1. Choose the imprint of the subject you want to get in touch with. Unlike other applications, here, the subject must necessarily be a person who left this plane (no matter when) and whom you want to connect with.
2. Place the imprint in the vertical drawer for the witness.
3. Place the photo paper wrapped in black paper (so as not to veil) in the imprint drawer.
4. Bring all the buttons to "0," rotating them gently counterclockwise all the way.

5. Achieve awareness and if all is well, proceed to the next step.
6. Perform the tuning by mentalizing the aspect you want to photograph.
7. Leave the device in this position for at least 2 hours.
8. Develop the photo paper.

VI. Applications

As you can see from the modes of utilisation, the range of applications of this device is very wide and it can be used in a variety of areas. We do not claim that we have included all the directions in which it can be applied, it can practically be used wherever we want to focus and materialize the mind. Accordingly, this remains an open chapter and we invite you to experiment for yourself and send us reports of your experiences that will surely help us to refine and improve the future devices and, why not, they will contribute to the development of radionics.

We will list only a few of the directions in which the ATLANTIS device can be used:

- to energetically support therapies (whether they are holistic or allopathic);
- to support spiritual practice;

- to protect and energetically support a certain space, place, or geographical area;
- to energetically charge drinks and food;
- to energetically charge certain remedies;
- to maintain a harmonious relationship;
- to create positive financial resonances and to enhance the resonance with the state of prosperity;
- to quickly eliminate various energy blockages;
- to communicate with the subtle planes and become aware of them;
- the practice of radionics itself makes us aware of the greatness and power of our mind as well as of the permanent connection we have with the whole manifestation.

The experiences we have performed on the crystallization of some salts showed that after only 20 minutes of action on such a solution using ATLANTIS, the crystallization mode completely changes according to the influence that has been manifested. Also, experiments on bacterial cultures show that the arrangement and the rate of propagation can be radically altered using this device.

VII. Affirmations. Rules and examples

The forceful ideas we want to manifest with the help of radionics are formulated as affirmations. In order to be used without generating contradictions, they must comply with certain rules. Below are some rules as well as examples of affirmations that can be used to develop your own suggestions.

Affirmations must be the fruit of positive thinking, that is a way of thinking that connects our subconscious directly to the concept we want to manifest. From this point of view, for example, THE WISH is a negative way of thinking. When you want something, the obvious message sent to the subconscious is one of lack, saying you don't have that thing you want, because if you had it, you wouldn't want it anymore. What is important is not to want one thing, but to be one with it, that is to say, to have it!

It seems paradoxical, but by expressing your wish, you send a message of lack to the subconscious and it automatically connects you to lack rather than to getting what you “want.”

Which is better, to want something or to practically have it?

All the rules regarding affirmations must be viewed through this prism of identification with the purpose itself and it is a fundamental consideration above any other rule.

Affirmations are formulated in the present tense.

In the subconscious, there is neither past nor future, but only present. Ideas are created as a form, therefore if you accept an idea in the present tense, that idea will materialize very quickly. On our ability to accept and visualize what we affirm depends the time that will take until the final result is reached. By keeping your affirmations in the present tense, you accept the purpose in the present tense, and your subconscious will act immediately to achieve it.

When you relate to the future or the past, you are already referring to another person, you are no longer you, and a dissociation occurs. You can use the past tense when talking about harmful behaviors that you want to change, but when you want to materialize something, it is best to use the present.

In the brain, there are the so-called mirror neurons (which instantly reflect reality), therefore when you express yourself in the present tense as if the thing you are aiming for is manifested, these neurons already put your mind in the proper state for achieving that thing.

Affirmations must state what you want to achieve, not what you want to avoid.

Do not describe what you want to remove or eliminate, state only what you are aiming for and want to obtain. In other words, affirmations must not contain negations or expressions that indicate a departure from some situations or experiences.

Be flexible in thinking when formulating affirmations because some actions cannot be expressed otherwise.

For example, quitting smoking is very difficult to express and literally only in positive terms.

Affirmations must be specific, you must state exactly what you want to manifest.

For example, if you want to get money, specify exactly the amount you want: "By the end of this year, I have an income of 50,000 euros," not "I am financially rich and I have plenty of resources." Your subconscious cannot build an image of what abundance and prosperity mean because they are not expressing something clear; they are not specific. You need to have a clear picture of the end result you want to achieve, something you can accept without stress or anxiety. Everything works at your level of acceptance. You need to know exactly what the destination is. Clearly defining the objective is essential.

Affirmations must be formulated in experiential terms so that your subconscious can understand them.

Even if we seem to express ourselves clearly and objectively, we can often have the experience of being understood differently by those we communicate with. This is because the words are really only symbols, they are not reality. When we say "green," for example, it is unlikely that the person we communicate with will understand the same thing as we do. Each person can make over 1,000 distinctions in shades of green, so when you communicate with someone, there is little chance of thinking about the "same" green!

The same thing happens when we want to transmit something to our subconscious. We must make sure that it receives exactly what we want to transmit and in order to do so, we talk to it in terms of lived experiences.

For example, if we were to reformulate the affirmation at the previous rule, it would sound like this:

By the end of this year, I find a job as I found the job of sales manager at Dell two years ago, which brings me a net income of 50,000 euros annually.

Affirmations must be motivating and express a pleasant and easy way to follow.

The subconscious reacts fundamentally to two stimuli: suffering and pleasure. We do not want in the case of an affirmation to introduce elements that suggest suffering (although it is a stimulus much more motivating than pleasure), but we want to suggest to the subconscious to choose the most pleasant and easy ways to lead us to the target.

What we want to highlight here is that it would be advisable to make your affirmations as appealing and pleasant as possible.

For example:

By the end of this year, I find a job as I found the job of sales manager at Dell two years ago, which brings me a net income of 50,000 euros annually, easily and satisfactorily.

Affirmations must focus on the best possible result.

Aim to formulate the best result you can imagine and express the possibility that it will manifest itself even more than you can imagine. In other words, do not limit the objective.

For example:

By the end of this year, I find a job as I found the job of sales manager at Dell two years ago, which brings me a net income of at least 50,000 euros annually, easily and satisfactorily.

Affirmations must not violate the free will of another person.

We can only decide for ourselves, we cannot decide what is good or bad for someone else. The only point in the Universe we can control and influence is ourselves!

When you want to help someone using radionics, you explain what the situation is, you help them find an affirmation in which to recognize themselves and then you can use that affirmation.

If you want to help someone with whom you find it difficult to engage in a dialogue, decide yourself what affirmation you will use, communicate it to them and only then you can use it.

This principle is called ecology and implies beneficial results for those involved and for those around (for everyone).

Even if we are under the impression that we know what is best for another person, we must allow them the right to free will (as we ourselves have this right) and understand that each situation is part of a bigger game and, although it may seem unfair, each and every situation someone goes through is ultimately constructive for their character.

Affirmations must not include comparisons.

It is important to understand that you are not in competition with anyone. We are here to create, not to compete. Competition is a way of trying to impose yourself, to raise your poor self-image. The only person you have to compete with is yourself, and even here, competition is not necessary.

Our goal should always be to achieve perfection. If you try to compare yourself to a person you perceive as your superior, you will always see yourself as “second” to them. If you compare yourself to those who are inferior to you, you will have a feeling of false superiority and live in fear that these people may catch up with you. Never say that you are as good or better than somebody else. If you say “I am the best sales agent in the company,” the other sales agents in the company may not be great.

It doesn't take much to be better than someone who is mediocre. There will always be someone who is better than you in one area or another and there will always be someone who is not as good as you. In both cases, comparing to them is damaging to you.

“I am not interested in what you do, I'm just interested in what I do. This does not mean that I do not observe your performance. I can learn from your success. This is not about comparing. What I mean is that I like a certain quality or characteristic in you and I think it can benefit me.”

Your affirmations must be credible.

It is harmful for you to state something that you cannot accept for yourself at the subconscious level. If you state something you cannot accept, you will place unrealistic demands on your reality regarding performance, in other words, the conflict between the subconscious and the conscious will be very great. If you now have an income of 5,000 euros per year, it may be inconceivable for the subconscious to accept a 10-fold increase in this income in a very short period of time. You must be capable of visualizing your affirmation in the first person, present tense. If you cannot see yourself doing that thing, living that way, looking that way or having that thing, then you will not succeed. You need to be able to visualize yourself experiencing that thing in the first person, present tense. The idea is to create the experience in your mind without anxiety or stress because stress and anxiety are unproductive if you want to achieve high performance. The keyword is balance. Do not state goals that are too easy, otherwise, you will not be motivated enough to act in order to achieve them. On the other hand, do not state goals that you cannot imagine or cannot accept, because you will be intimidated by that goal and you will not begin to work towards achieving it. It is wise to divide your goals into small, realistic fragments, fragments that, once they are accomplished, will form the whole purpose. The credibility factor is essential for this process to work. Your affirmations must be credible, meaning significant enough to arouse your enthusiasm, but modest enough to be realistic.

Your affirmations must create balance.

The power of affirmations should not be underestimated. When used properly, you will be almost obsessively attracted to your purpose. It is important to choose goals that are positive and beneficial. Balance is the key. If you make affirmations only for your business or career, your relationship with your family or life partner may suffer. Plan your affirmations so that you develop simultaneously in ALL areas of your life. You are capable of making many affirmations at the same time, provided they are not conflicting. To create balance, make sure you do not put aside, underestimate or over-evaluate any part of your life. Strive to be balanced as a complete person, not just as an individual who excels in one area of life. One of the most important words is balance. If you have balance, you have everything. You don't want to get one thing and lose the rest. You can have them all, so schedule each area of your life in order to create balance.

Affirmations must relate to things you can do yourself to attract the result.

Ultimately, the price you pay to reach a goal is your value in that direction. If you increase your value, you automatically attract the goal to you. That is why it is good for the affirmation to contain your actions (it must not depend on someone else), actions that, sustained methodically and consistently, increase your value.

For example:

"I allocate two hours every day to study in the field of management and sales and by the end of this year, I find a job as I found the job of sales manager at Dell two years ago, which brings me a net income of at least 50,000 euros annually, easily and satisfactorily."

Your affirmations must observe "the principle of secrecy."

The principle of secrecy means that your goals should be known only by you. If you tell other people, they will most likely either discourage you or try to stop you. People tend to be upset when you start to evolve and change because your "vitality" makes their "apathy" seem more real! If you reveal your goals and affirmations to others, you give them the opportunity to take action against you. They will tell you that it is something stupid and will not work.

Since we tend to think that others are smarter or wiser than us because of our poor self-image, we end up believing them. Think about how many times you gave up doing what you wanted because you listened to someone else. And think about how many times you have regretted not listening to yourself.

Disclose your affirmations and goals only to people who need to know them or can help you achieve your goal faster. We refer here in particular to personal goals, but if it is about team goals, you can share them with others. Setting goals through cooperation is essential in a group because you have a common purpose.

Many of us have been told to set a goal and tell everyone what they intend to do. That way, we will feel embarrassed if we hold back. I don't think this is a healthy behaviour. If you do so, your purpose becomes a "must." If I "must" do something, I will oppose the change, even if it is for my benefit. This "must" causes constraint, stress, tension, and anxiety. If you keep your goals and affirmations to yourself, people are less likely to try to stop you or give you advice.

Of course, they will tell you that they give you "advice" for "your own good." Do not believe them! Their advice is based on their present level of consciousness—not on yours! The right time to tell them about your goals is after you have reached your goal. Instead of saying "Here's what I want to do," say "Here's what I did." That way, you will be free to use your affirmations in order to focus on achieving your goal.

Affirmations must allow the subconscious, the possibility to choose.

Ultimately, our results are the fruit of our habits. If we eat a lot and the wrong foods, if we get fat, if we smoke, we will develop all kinds of specific diseases. If we study and constantly increase our value, we will be more and more successful and keep our consciousness alive until old age. When we want to produce a certain result, we must choose those behaviors that lead us to it and eliminate those that slow us down. It may seem difficult to change a behaviour, but step by step, gradually, without forcing ourselves, we can finally change direction.

Your subconscious loves habits, and if you want to impose something, it will oppose to the uttermost of its power. The best way to inoculate new behaviours is to do it as an option, to allow the subconscious to choose, not to fight it. If you want, you should understand that a behaviour had a certain justification, thank it and let that behavior go away by giving the subconscious the option of a new behaviour. The idea of choice does not necessarily have to be expressed explicitly in the text, but under no circumstances should an affirmation be expressed as a firm command, without considering that it is the subconscious that actually runs the game! If you want, the manifestation of an intention comes from a state of tranquility and inner peace from which you prefer to manifest a certain aspect.

Models of affirmations

Now, we would like to share a few affirmations that might be useful to you. These affirmations are not personalized, but they can be great ideas on how to create your own metastory (affirmation).

I forgive myself and I forgive everyone else.

I feel fully responsible for my life and I take responsibility for everything that happens to me.

I love my body and I treat it with full respect.

I believe there is a power that works through me to manifest the good in my life.

I allow myself to make mistakes from time to time and learn from these mistakes.

I allow myself to love myself unconditionally, no matter how many mistakes I make.

I choose to believe that I am not what I have and I am not what I do.

I choose to separate myself from what I have and what I do.

I choose to understand and practice full responsibility.

In each person I talk to, I see a potential buyer of the product or service I offer.

I am permanently pleased with myself and with the image of my company in the community where I live.

I always see and reveal the best in my clients.

I empathize with my clients and easily discover their needs.

I feel competent and confident in my career.

I allow myself to enjoy my life, my profession and my relationship with people.

I manifest a positive expectation of a successful outcome and I look forward to overcoming the possible obstacles that arise every day.

I understand the difference between changing the mode of action and losing.

I feel able to express myself and I know that others see me that way.

I am a magnet for creative ideas. Creative ideas flow towards me.

I feel alive 100% of the time and I show it by acting with enthusiasm.

I feel confident and I can easily find solutions in any situation.

I allow myself to be open to intuitions from my Higher Self.

I trust myself and I know exactly what I have to say and do.

I am constantly finding new and positive ways to play the game of life.

I take responsibility and understand that I create my own experiences.

I am making plans for tomorrow, but I am living for today.

I thank the problems in the past and the burdens I carried and I allow them to leave.

I am brave and I allow me to be myself.

I am full of love and manifest love for those around me and for the whole manifestation, and the Universe responds with love and I feel loved.

With each passing day, I feel more and more aware.

I love my Source of power.

I am flexible and open and I easily and pleasantly learn new ways of doing things.

I give up with ease and pleasure everything that does not support my goals.

I am efficient and focused in stressful situations.

I am creative and full of ideas and I easily anticipate events in my imagination and know how to deal with them when they appear.

I allow myself to be calm, at peace, stimulated and creative when pressure comes.

I have an interesting life and I attract interesting people around me.

I gladly assist my family members in their personal development.

I have an excellent memory and I remember clearly and easily everything I read, hear, see, and feel.

I am organized and I always have an action plan.

I take calculated risks to improve my life.

VIII. Presentation mode

The complete ATLANTIS package contains:

- the ATLANTIS device;
- 4 black plastic envelopes, one for the witness, the other for the imprint (usually, only 2 envelopes are used, the others are reserves);
- 1 pointer—a probe for investigations using the scales;
- 1 antenna for charging liquid/solid objects;
- several general scales for various fields of use;
- user's manual.

The ATLANTIS device is a complex structure that allows a whole lot of developments and applications. We will constantly publish on the site articles and information about this device and about radionics as well as other accessories to widen the spectrum of use.

IX. Testimonials

M. I., Bucharest. A 28-year-old man with terminal cirrhosis. Doctors estimated he had two months to live, at the most. About a week after he purchased the device, he managed to formulate an affirmation that involved him emotionally and he felt the attunement. He started working daily with ATLANTIS, performing the tuning every three hours. Less than two weeks later, while he was on the street, he had an illuminating experience and realized he actually had a stooping to the right that congested his liver and his spine was curved. He immediately straightened up and felt good, "like I haven't felt since I was 14." He stopped, sat on a bench and calmed down. And as he relaxed, he intercepted from his subconscious a mental incantation about his wife with whom he had a difficult relationship, who said "you are eating my liver!" As soon as he intercepted it, the incantation stopped. A month and a half later, when he had his tests done, doctors told him he had no trace of cirrhosis.

A. N., employed as an official clerk, Bucharest. As a result of a government decision, he suffered a decrease in salary and some of the bonuses he received were canceled. He first introduced in ATLANTIS an affirmation that he wanted to render void this decision. After a discussion with us, when we explained that he could not intervene in the fate of all those who had been affected by this decision, he changed the affirmation and in three weeks, he was moved to another department where he received a salary that greatly compensated for the bonuses he had lost.

P. G., Cluj, a child only 9 years old. Following a car accident, he suffered a spine fracture in the cervical area with paralysis of the body. The doctors did not give him any chance of regeneration and, practically, the child had become a vegetable. After three weeks of working with ATLANTIS, the child began to experience severe pain in the neck area and began to feel extremely strong stings and currents in his hands and feet. In a month and a half, he could already walk. One year after the accident, he had no sequelae after the trauma he had suffered.

We considered it appropriate to add at the end of each manual some testimonials of those who used it not for advertising purposes but only because we wanted to stimulate you in sending us your personal impressions and suggestions after using our products. These testimonials will be posted on the site and can help with beautiful ideas for those who want to transform and change their existence and destiny.
